EDITOR'S NOTES

I can't believe that there's only four months left in 2022!

When faced with the end of a year, some could look at that end with sadness or even with frustration. This is especially so when you look back at your year with the view of remembering what you DIDN'T do.

But what of the things you did do? Why not remember those? The nights you spend with family or friends, laughs shared with co-workers, moments that made you cry or think. All of these may seem like little things but to others, because of their life's hardships, those moments we take for granted, to them...is priceless. So, look at your 2022 in the right frame of mind and I bet it was amazing! My wish and prayer for all of you is that the rest of your 2022 will be another fantastic year!

ENTREPRENEUR TO WATCH OUT FOR: MEET ELOISE HEAD

As featured on THE TODAY SHOW and GOOD MORNING AMERICA, Sunday Times Bestselling Author Eloise Head (Founder of @FITWAFFLE brand w/ 8.6 million across all social media) of her Amazon #1 Bestseller Fitwaffle's Baking it Easy which is set to release in the US on August 16th, used the time of pandemic to develop exciting, delicious, and simple desserts for the home chef and created Fitwaffle Kitchen on Instagram. Fans of her indulgences quickly grew to over 8.6 million across social media, with some views hitting over 1.38 billion views on TikTok. Eloise has become a true entrepreneurial inspiration to millions, setting the standard for how to build a genuine, unique, and successful brand from the ground up.

Baking in Easy is filled with 100 sweet, 3-ingredient mouthwatering desserts, including stuffed chocolate muffins, easy mini cheesecakes, crepes, cinnamon swirl banana bread, rainbow cupcakes, and so much more. With this bestselling recipe book, there is sure to be the perfect fit for anyone's sweet tooth!

InLife International recently caught up with Eloise to discuss her journey as an entrepreneur, and here's what went down:

How did you get into the baking industry?

I've always loved food and cooking. When I was younger, I used to bake with my great Auntie and my sister. It's always been a hobby of mine, but I didn't start sharing my recipes online until the beginning of lockdown in April 2020. I started sharing quick and easy recipe videos aimed at beginner bakers and people that just wanted to have some fun in the kitchen. The videos became very popular very quickly and I was so happy with the positive response I received across social media.

What do you like most about baking?

I think baking can be very therapeutic and calming. It's also such an achievement when you bake something that you're really proud of. Baking always brings back such happy memories for me, and I love bringing a bake to share with my friends and family (which also makes them happy too)!

Can you tell us more about Fitwaffle?

The name Fitwaffle has a few different meanings. The fit part relates to my passion for fitness and my background, as I used to be a personal trainer. It also refers to fitting all foods into your diet, as I'm a strong believer in balance and moderation when it comes to food. The waffle part refers to food and desserts; it also refers to the phrase 'waffling on'. Anyone who knows me will tell you that I tend to talk a lot!

Why do you think it's important to moderate when it comes to both your physical and mental health?

I think it's very easy to fall victim to diet culture with all the misinformation and fad diets being promoted through different media platforms. I believe it's very important to be able to take this information with a pinch of salt and do your own research to protect both your physical and mental health. I definitely fell victim to diet culture when I was younger, which unfortunately led to a very poor relationship with food and exercise. I would massively restrict the foods I ate to only foods I considered to be 'good' for me. I also under-ate and overexercised as I was afraid of gaining weight. This hugely affected my social life, relationships with friends and family, and mental health. I realized over time that I didn't need to restrict myself from certain foods to be fit and healthy. I also didn't need to obsess over going to the gym daily. I am happier, more confident, and more comfortable in my own skin now than I ever have been by enjoying all foods in moderation and exercising for enjoyment, rather than being purely focused on how my body looks. I can only speak from my own experiences and the experiences I have witnessed others go through as a personal trainer for many years. Still, it seems clear to me that one of the keys to living a happy, healthy, and fulfilled life is balance and moderation, as opposed to restriction.

What has been the most valuable lesson you've learned while in the industry. This can be about the industry or about yourself.

The most important lesson I've learned about the industry is to adapt quickly. Social media and trends move so fast that if you want to stay current and grow on social media, you need to adapt quickly to the changes being made. For example, when TikTok started, the ones that got there first benefitted from that. When Instagram introduced Reels and started to become a more video-focused platform, those still only posting photos get left behind. This applies to the world outside of social media too. The ability to adapt quickly to a certain situation can be massively beneficial.

If you could go back in a time machine to the time when you were just getting started, what would you do differently?

I would have taken the leap to go full-time with Fitwaffle sooner than I did, and I would have started producing video content earlier. I think YouTube is a really strong platform and can build a fantastic community, so I would have focused on this more, and leaving my full-time job as a personal trainer sooner may have allowed me to do this.

What has the pandemic taught you when it comes to your business?

That being online is exactly the right place to be right now for me and that my content can impact people's lives worldwide. When we all went into lockdown and were told to stay at home, the internet and social media were a place to go for people to find entertainment and connection with others. My business provided exactly that during the pandemic and continues to give value to my audience and people across the world. Throughout the pandemic, I received many messages from my followers telling me how baking helped them through these difficult times and improved their mental health. This will always be a focus in my business, to be a source of positivity and inspiration for whoever needs it.

What is the best advice you have ever been given?

There's a quote that has always stuck with me, 'Whether you think you can or think you can't, you're right' by Henry Ford. As generic as it sounds, I think believing in yourself, and your abilities is the key to success in whatever you do.

What are your future plans? Inside your career or out of it.

Personally, I plan to get married later this year. I had to cancel my wedding twice due to the pandemic, so I'm excited about my third 'time lucky' attempt.

As for my career, my audience is always a big part of the focus when it comes to the future. I want to build a small team around me to ensure I can always provide value and content to an audience that has helped create a presence for me. I'd also love to venture into some new areas of media, maybe TV, if there's any space for me.

Ms. Pui Yi

MSPUIYI is a famed model, Beauty CEO, and Musician who at only 23 years old is one of the fastest-rising influencers in the world with 16.8 million Instagram followers. She has singlehandedly carved her name as one of Asia's highest-paid social media influencers and won the International Asia Wang Hong Award in Shanghai as Asia's top influencer. There is a lot behind the sexy image that MSPUIYI has meticulously crafted with her bold photos on social media. Fluent in English and with a quick wit, this savvy entrepreneur recently launched her two beauty lines MS Pui Yi Cosmetics (sold out within a week and now relaunching worldwide) and the beloved Kiseki Skincare.

Just recently, MSPUIYI also added singing to her resume with the release of her new single "Men-Mory," produced by DJ Goldfish, Malaysia's most famous DJ and award-winning producer who tours the world's biggest festival stages, including Tomorrowland, Ultra Music Festival, and EDC.

Looking sexy can be very controversial, especially in a conservative country like Malaysia. However, MSPUIYI is not listening to her critics. She is empowered by them and is taking the world's attention to the bank. She first rose to fame after her private photos were stolen by a laptop repair shop when she was just 19 years old and started posting sexy pictures after she was threatened by these hackers who got their hands on her private photos and demanded ransom or the images would be released. Now she is no longer shy about her body or worried about criticism. She considers showing off her sexier side to be empowering, and her thriving businesses continue to expand beyond beauty. Now she speaks about becoming a target for seductive posts on social media, about the severe effects of being trolled online, and how it has all made her stronger.

InLife International recently caught up with MSPUIYI to discuss her journey in the industry, and here's what went down:

How did you become an international influencer? What's it like to be an influencer?

When I was 16 years old, I went to a modeling academy. I love posing in front of the camera. "American Next Top Model" inspired me a lot.

In the January issue, I became a Penthouse Magazine cover girl; I then had my first single "Men-Mory" on some audio streaming and radio.

I realized that influencers more or less seem to have some impact on their audiences. Thus, I should bring out positive social values and bring attention and awareness to important causes.

What has been your greatest triumph, to date?

I own a cosmetics and skincare line. I was also the first Southeast Asian on the Penthouse magazine cover.

What has been your greatest lesson, and how have you used that lesson in your life?

"Walk your own path."

People like to judge other people. This pressure can make you stray from the path you started to carve for your future. Don't mind other people's aspirations, don't ever let someone else's goals and dreams influence your vision of life. It's your path, and you decide where it takes you and how long it takes you to see it through.

If you could travel back in time and alter one historical event, where would you go and what would you attempt to change?

I would like to go back in time to when I was 18, young and impressionable. I should've made better choices in my decisions, and be more wise and careful.

What do you think you came into this life to learn, and what do you think you came here to teach?

Life is a continuous learning experience. No matter how much we learn from the books, there is a difference between practical and theoretical experience.

I want to learn "never fail to try more." Even when we're feeling more prepared, there is a chance we fail in accomplishing our goals.

I want to teach "good things don't come easy." If you want to have a good life with a successful career, emotional satisfaction, and trustworthy friends you have to work hard.

What projects are you working on right now?

I am preparing to drop my next single in June-July, rebranding the cosmetics line to a beauty house.

What would you still like to attempt in your career?

Support charities that are to empower and educate women and girls. Charities such as Women for Women, Days for Girls, and Living Good focus on educating and supplying girls and women with health care, critical skills, counseling, and protection from trafficking and child marriage. Charities are vital to helping women and girls who need them, and every donation helps empower women and mitigate poverty.

What advice would you give to those hoping to follow in your footsteps?

As easy as this may sound, the question is loaded with responsibility and is, by no means, easy to answer.

I would say, "Success makes life easy, but there is no easy path to success." Put your best foot foremost, and you will succeed.

JEMIMA JOYCELYN

An emerging star to watch out for in 2022

Emerging star Jemima Joycelyn is making waves down under with her newly released EP, and it was produced by none other than one of Sydney's finest producers and studio, HIT MUSIC PRODUCERS Inc. Blending new age tones and personal, heart-felt storytelling with catchy, overarching pop melodies, the emerging stars' authentic sounds was released to the world following the single "Mirror on the Wall."

Drawing inspiration from pastor Jerry Zandstra and Mrs. Becky Peacock from her local church, Jemima's music style is a direct reflection of her life's purpose, which is to heal others through her life experiences - she's hoping to heal people through her music. Singing has always been Jemima's vibe. It's her comfort zone; it's where she can deeply express herself. Her songs represent her healing journey, and she hopes to inspire others through her music in theirs.

InLife Magazine recently caught up with Jemima to discuss her latest EP, and here's what went down:

How did you get started in the music industry?

Singing has always been a massive part of me. In 2020, I stumbled upon the opportunity to learn a short course with vocalstar, which George Caceres and his team ran. That was where I gained industry knowledge and trained with exclusive vocal coaches who trained other well-known artists in the industry and others who motivated and inspired me to pursue my music professionally. This also gave me the opportunity to attend a songwriting camp with platinum producer Adam Hurstfield and Vocal Coach Don Wolf. That was pretty much the start of my journey.

How were you actually 'discovered'?

I was discovered on the website StarNow. An offer to collaborate showed up in my inbox, and I jumped straight in; being the spontaneous person that I am. It's also what I've been manifesting for; after trying to figure things out on my own, and hoping the universe connects me to the right people - the opportunity just landed in my inbox.

What do you like most about singing?

It brings me so much peace and comfort. I moved away from home for further education when I was 13 through to 16 years old. During this time, I endured extremely traumatic and life-altering experiences and developed intense anxiety - singing was the only thing that helped me cope. My favourite song of all time, was "God will make a way" by Don Moen. I sang it every time I felt abandoned or terrified, and it always worked somehow.

Can you tell us about your first EP?

My first EP just came about, one song led to another, and before we knew it, we had an EP. I have to give a lot of the credit to my producer for all the courage, encouragement, and support. I couldn't have achieved any of this without him; he is my main supporter, especially from the start. I was a completely introverted, single parent, and in a phase of just starting over. All I did was write and sing whatever came to my heart and mind, and he paved the way for my very first EP as a pop artist. My music genres are Pop, k-pop, and dance.

JEMIMA JOYCELYN

What sort of person is going to love this EP?

Anyone would enjoy it; my music was produced by one of Sydney's finest producers and studios in the business, most of them being Aria-awarded producers who have produced songs for some top artists and shows.

What inspires you to be creative?

Mostly my kids and nature - the fact that both of these are so carefree and free-spirited and living to love life just blows my mind, and seeing things through their thought process makes my problems seem a lot like puzzles that can be fixed. That's pretty much what motivates me to make things work, no matter what.

Is there anything special that you do to get into a creative mindset?

Yes, I listen to future bass beats type of music, or random beats or a piano instrumental of the internet, and I just start singing random lyrics to it, eventually I end up having a chorus or a whole song.

What message if any, do you try to put into your work?

My message through my music is all about healing and encouraging people to embrace their authentic selves and to stand in their power. Growing up in a Christian culture, which I loved, also got me in a trap of people pleasing, which eventually turned into a bad habit where I suppressed 95% of myself to make others happy. So now I'm just setting the stage to breaking all stereotypes and lack of mindsets and hoping to enlighten others through my journey.

What has been the most memorable experience of your career so far?

Becoming a Registered Artist made me feel like I entered a new era of my life's purpose, and I just want to dive all in and see where it all leads. I am really excited about it.

Do you ever find yourself unable to express your creativity to the fullest? What kinds of things inhibit you?

Yeah, I've had creative blocks. Sometimes I am too tired and depressed then sit in it for a while till it passes. My life as a single parent is what inhibits me (laughs). I have a great supportive co-parent, so I am sorted, but the loneliness from becoming a single parent is just too overwhelming at times. Although I try my best to live in the present moment.

Who is your greatest influence?

Pastor Jerry Zandstra and Mrs. Becky Peacock from my local church. They live by example and have taught me so much wisdom, genuine love, and care, and they never doubted me. It's also where I trained and discovered my singing brought healing to others; Pastor Jerry has passed on now so may he rest in peace.

Do you feel that you chose your "passion," or did it choose you?

I think we chose each other. I'm on a mission to fulfill my life's purpose; my life path number is literally 33; it's a master number so I know I am meant to be a healer. I have been doing it unintentionally for so long through my singing and now I am just doing it with intention. There's also the fact that everything is aligning by itself - I guess its meant to be. In the end I'm just doing the work, guided by my intuition; let's see where it all leads. I'm excited for this journey.

If you hadn't chosen your field, what would your alternate field have been?

I think anything to do with my creativity would eventually become my endeavour. I worked as a graphic designer for years, now as a sole trader, I run a full-time marketing agency called [CCS]Creative.Commercial.Services. When I get the opportunity to do a bit of acting and create digital line art, which will hopefully be launching soon.

What are your future plans? Inside your career or out of it.

Within my career, I would love to become a full-time performing artist. But for the moment, I am focussed on building my artist portfolio, collaborating if the opportunity arises, and hopefully having new music and lyric videos released soon. Apart from my music career, I hope to give back to the community in whatever way I can.

TOP FIVE TIPS AND STEPS TO BECOMING A CONTENT CREATOR

Every day, new digital content creators are popping up on our social media timelines. As the online sphere continues to grow, anyone with an internet connection can easily venture into content creation and share their ideas and talents with the world with just a click of a button. The challenge, however, is how to stand out among the rest.

For prominent social media personalities Phillip Hernandez (popularly known as the CEO of "smooth promotions" Davao Conyo) and Yumi (one of TikTok's biggest bird moms), anyone can be a successful content creator like them as long as they put in the work and build a strong connection with their audience. After all, they did not gain millions of followers overnight.

Here are five tips they shared at SKY Fiber's "Swak Na Swak" Media Launch to help aspiring content creators unleash their creativity and discover their passion in the online space:

1. Start now and don't be afraid.

Yumi, herself, didn't take too long to post videos when she made her TikTok account. When she discovered the potential of the platform to grow, coupled with her interest in joining the vlogging community, she took the opportunity immediately. She said, "If you already know you want to start creating content, take action now. You are the only one who can make it happen."

Phillip also jumped in saying that people shouldn't be afraid to try creating content even if they feel they don't have the talent for it. "On the internet, there is a space for everyone," he added, believing that every person has something valuable to share.

2. Observe trends and people to craft relatable content.

Creativity is necessary if you want to create content regularly. Yumi, who is followed by over 4.2 million people, shares her life as a K-Pop stan, casual gamer, and mother of six pet birds. Even if she simply shows a glimpse of her daily experiences, she tries to keep it fresh and exciting by using trending topics and challenges to incorporate into her videos.

Phillip, whose hilarious dubs and skits are loved by 3.9 million people on Facebook and TikTok, likes to observe people and real-life situations so that his viewers can recognize themselves or their friends and family in his characters. He always tells people, "Your content should be relatable. No matter how funny a joke is, if it's an inside joke that not everyone will get, then it's useless."

3. Find meaning and passion in what you are doing.

According to Phillip, making content is more than just a job for him because telling stories and making others laugh is his passion. This passion of his inspires him to execute better outputs for his audiences.

Yumi has also grown to love sharing her stories and views her platform as a chance to make others smile and feel inspired. "I want to be an inspiration to the youth and show them that they can have bigger dreams. I had people that I looked up to when I was young and I want to be like that for them too," she shared the big dream which motivates her every day.

4. If you want to work with brands, show them that you are easy to work with.

Some content creators have made a career out of their talent and brands reach out to them so they can help promote the brand's products and services. Phillip himself has worked with several brands over the years, especially since he's famous for unexpected yet amusing brand intrusions in his skits.

One of Phillip's main pieces of advice is to understand not only your audience but also the brands you work with. "If you want to make a living out of content creation, you have to show companies and brands that you are easy to work with and they can incorporate their brand in your content," he said.

Aside from attitude and creative ideas, content creators need to show brands that they are capable and equipped with the essentials needed for them to deliver the brand content in the best quality possible.

Watch Davao Conyo and Yumi's SKY Fiber branded TikTok videos for a guide on how they create content for brands.

5. Subscribe to an internet plan that fits your lifestyle as a content creator.

An online content creator's schedule requires them to stay connected with their clients and audiences virtually. Given that it's also a work-from-home set-up for most, a good quality internet connection helps them keep up with the daily demands of the job.

For Yumi, having a WiFi signal anywhere in the house is important for content creators since they usually shoot videos and work in different parts of the house. Phillip added that affordability is also important. While they may be earning from their online content, they are still budget-conscious consumers.

FIVE MAKEUP TIPS THAT'LL MAKE YOU STAND OUT

In the past couple of decades, women paid a lot of attention to brightly coloured lipsticks and dark mascara. However, these days, the more natural look is more appealing. It is also healthier because heavy makeup does not seep into the pores and there is less to clean off when you go to bed at night. Of course, a little makeup is necessary in order to bring out the best of your features.

Here are five beauty and makeup tips for that awesome natural look:

Cleanse the skin

You need to start with a good cleanser as well as good moisturizer. Wash your skin well under warm water. This will prevent it from drying out. The moisturizer should have a good SPF factor, which will also help prevent the skin from drying out and becoming dehydrated.

Light Foundation

Focus on a light foundation, instead of something that is going to be too harsh. You may want to think of a moisturizer with a slight tint. This means that you don't have to opt for a foundation which can clog up the pores. Use a slight red tint around the cheeks. However, don't go overboard with this. It should be kept as natural as possible. Experts suggest that when you use foundation, it should be applied with fingers and rubbed in because this will look more natural.

Blush

It is easy to overdo this as you may have seen in the past when women applied heavy makeup. To make this as natural as possible, look for a cream which will match up to your skin tone. Have a look at the color of your lips and match this up to the tint. Stay away from the shimmers, which will look less natural. Blend this in well over your cheek bones as well as the lips.

Eyes

It is important to focus on the eyes, especially when these are your best feature. However, it is important not to go overboard with mascara and eyeliner either. You can do more harm than good when you apply too much mascara, because you won't bring out the colour of your eyes. Your eye lashes just need a slight coat. A lot of people use a cream on their eyelids because powders can become caked.

Gloss

There are many ways that you can bring out your lips. You will have achieved the natural look by now, and you can finish this off by a little color on the lips. There are many natural colors available on the market. You need to find something that is just slightly brighter than that of your own lips. Have your gloss with you so that you can reapply it. There are also sprays available which help set the makeup.

SHARON STONE

With her blonde hair and blue eyes, actress Sharon Stone is best known for playing femme fatales. One of the most popular sex symbols of the 1990s, she rose to international prominence with her role as an alluring psycho killer in Paul Verhoeven's Basic Instinct, for which she was nominated for a Golden Globe for Best Actress. Later, she would win a Golden Globe for her role as a trophy wife in Martin Scorsese's Casino, as well as a Primetime Emmy and two MTV Movie Awards. In 1998, during the height of her fame, Stone purchased a home in San Francisco's tony Sea Cliff neighborhood with her then-husband, journalist Phil Bronstein. The couple paid $6 million for the 8,500-square-foot, Italianate-Victorian mansion, then sold it in 2005 for $13 million, following their contentious divorce. Now on the market again for $39 million, it is currently the Bay Area's most expensive home listing.

Built in 1908 after the San Francisco Earthquake inspired the original owners to flee the city, it was the first home built in Sea Cliff. The historic mansion has been updated with all the latest modern amenities but retains its Old World charm. Classic and elegant, the home features tall ceilings and beautifully maintained dark wood parquet floors. The main level features ultra-wide towering doors and custom-built fireplaces with massive surrounds. Creamy walls contrast with dark wood doors and accents. Gorgeous picture windows provide jaw-dropping views of the ocean and the Golden Gate Bridge from many different rooms. The dramatic formal living and dining rooms connect to more intimate spaces, including a cozy den with a fireplace and a reading room. The kitchen has been updated with Viking and Wolf appliances and connects to a family dining area with access to the sizeable north-facing terrace and deck looking out on the Pacific Ocean.

The home's seven bedrooms and eight bathrooms are topped by a stunning primary suite featuring turn-of-the-century details and hand-crafted moldings, an office, a generous walk-in closet, two luxurious dressing rooms, and his-and-hers baths. Two additional bedrooms include Juliet balconies, while one sports its own sun terrace looking out on the serene courtyard. The top floor features an activity room and a guest suite with two walk-out terraces. Weighing in at 400 kilograms, the Baryonyx is over 4.8 metres long and made up of 102,317 LEGO® bricks. We were able to relive the magic of beloved stories and characters from the Jurassic World franchise, as we embarked on a thrilling journey across the Island – Isla Nublar.

We were able to walk through the iconic gates of the park and experience the inner workings of the Jurassic World lab and venture into the baby dinosaur enclosure, where a life-size Brachiosaurus weighing well over 1.8 tonnes awaited! We were also able to encounter incredible models of Triceratops, Velociraptors, T.rex and many more.

More than two years and 10,000 build hours have gone into the creation of Jurassic World by Brickman®, making it the biggest exhibition the Brickman team has ever created.
